

Residential ROI Under One Roof

Every house is different. That's why it can be difficult to capture maximum return from a portfolio of single-family properties. It's hard to get economies of scale. Property management, listing, and transaction services are fragmented across markets and regions.

USRealty.com brings it all together under one roof. Streamlined and online, our integrated transaction services deliver a boost to your return right up to the moment of closing. And our national network of property management service partners ensures that each property is market-ready so you can move quickly to capture returns at the right moment.

Who We Are

USRealty.com is a licensed national residential real estate brokerage. From our Pennsylvania call center, we support property listings nationwide. You have one point of contact for listing, closing and related services. Our integrated services let you choose the array of property management and selling services that best fit your needs and that best deliver the return you need. USRealty.com was formed in 2014 and in 2015, handled over $900 million in real estate transactions.

Our Mission Is To Build Your Equity and ROI

USRealty.com believes that it costs too much to sell residential properties in the U.S. (International research backs us up on that, by the way.) Our goal is to help you make more from your investment in residential real estate...with less hassle.

What We Do That Others Can't

USRealty.com manages a proprietary national network of membership in 110 multiple listing services in key markets; licensed presence in 33 states; and a network of brokers that completes our national service. Instead of dealing with a different broker (and a different property manager, and a different closing service, and so on) in each state, you save time, money and headaches with our one-stop services. Our customized reports produce the metrics you need to truly understand how much you are putting into your residential portfolio and how much you are getting back.

Why You'll Love Working with USRealty.com

We understand the housing market and your goals for your investment in it. Our team of experienced brokers and customer support staff streamline administration, reports, listing and transaction tasks, so you can concentrate on growth and strategy. Every day, more investors, banks, and property management firms channel more properties through our proven system.
